

Directions: Diagram the following conditional statements and their contrapositives.

If you did well on the LSAT, then you studied.

We will watch the football game if the TV is working.

If Jessie walks with Tyson, Samantha will walk with Blake.

If Tyrone goes to the bar, Dan does not go.

My phone will die if I do not charge it.

If you bring a stopwatch to the LSAT, you may get written up.

If Brian gets malaria, he will die in Tanzania.

An understanding of conditional reasoning is necessary if you hope to do well on the LSAT.
